"State College Resources Belong To Region"

New Service Established For Western Minnesota

A Community Service Clearinghouse to facilitate development of the community service potential of the college and make its resources more accessible for community problem solving efforts in Western Minnesota has been established at Moorhead State College.

In announcing the Clearinghouse MSC President Roland Dille said that requests for educational resources from community organizations and public agencies have been increasing.

"The resources of the state college belong to the region," Dille pointed out, "and the Community Service Clearinghouse will enable Moorhead State to become a more effective partner along with other public and private groups in efforts designed to improve the quality of life in the region."

Dr. Byron L. Schmid, assistant professor of political science, will serve as director of the Clearinghouse, which will operate as an extension of the college Office of Continuing Education.

Four basic functions have been announced for the Clearinghouse. They are:

+Communication between Moorhead State College and community groups concerning community service program needs.

+Coordination of the College's community service program activities.

+Design and development of new community service programs.

+Sponsorship of selected community service programs and activities.

It is expected that activities will include public affairs workshops and conferences, community survey and research activities, technical consultation on community problems and development and information services.

MSC Gets $25,000 Health Grant

Moorhead State College has been awarded a $25,000 grant for the development of a health manpower education program among post secondary schools in Western Minnesota and the Minn-Dak Areawide Comprehensive Health Planning Council.

Project plans include:

+Identification of educational priorities of health manpower training programs.

+Development and evaluation of possible new health careers.

+Re-training and continuing education programs to help meet health manpower needs in a one-county area.

+Modification, development and coordination of health manpower training programs.

Theatre Graduate Named 'Best Actor'

Douglas Hamilton, who earned his bachelor's degree in theatre with honors from Moorhead State in 1971, was named best graduate actor at the conclusion of his first year of graduate work at the University of Minnesota. Hamilton is studying for a master of fine arts degree under a Bush Foundation Fellowship. The fellowship offers five quarters of work at the University followed by an internship at the Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis.

MISS BLACK MINNESOTA: — Rochelle Callendar of St. Paul, a Moorhead State College Junior who was named Miss Black Minnesota, made a guest appearance last spring with Miss Black America on the nationally-televized Flip Wilson Show. She presented a dance routine. Miss Callendar is a junior majoring in sociology.

First Project Equality Students Graduate At Spring Exercises

Some of the minority group students who came to Moorhead State College in 1968 under the Project E-Quality Program were among the graduates at spring commencement exercises May 25.

Chosen by fellow Black graduates to make brief remarks at commencement, Cynthia P. Wilson of Minneapolis said continuing benefits for the college and Moorhead-Fargo community in knowing a broader variety of people can only be established "if the community shares the responsibility of initiating and supporting continuing change by assisting minority group students." Choosing this option, she asserted, could make it possible so that "one day soon, very soon, special programs for minority students will no longer be needed."

Ms. Wilson received a degree in education and has won a full scholarship to pursue graduate work in urban studies at the University of Southern California of Los Angeles.

Noting that individuals constantly are faced with the choice of initiating change or doing nothing, she said those minority students who enrolled at Moorhead State in September, 1968 "all chose the option of initiating change by taking the lead in directing their own futures. Looking back, those of us who are graduating can see that we have achieved at least some of our goals: a stronger unity among ourselves, a greater knowledge of the world we have to face and a way to put this knowledge to effective use."

She said she was proud to be graduating from Moorhead State College and urged her fellow graduates to make a commitment that, "wherever we go, we will work to do something effective about injustice and inequalities." At the conclusion of her remarks she presented a bouquet of roses to Mrs. Lois Selberg, first coordinator of Project E-Quality (now renamed Equal Opportunity for Minority Students).

Materials, Media Center Established

Lommen Hall, formerly Moorhead State's Campus Laboratory School, has been converted to a professional materials center for the Education Department.

In addition to having four general purpose classrooms, the building will also include a library for all types of media materials.

Some of the other functions planned for the building include the following:

+A center for early childhood nursery education.

+Headquarters for the Education Department's Adjunctive Educational Services Section, which concerns teacher training in the fields of special education, mental retardation, special learning disabilities, remedial reading and counselor education.

+A new micro-teaching center.

+A professional 4th year center for elementary education majors.

+A pilot project center for secondary education majors.

+New quarters for the MSC Graduate Studies Office.

Sylvia Maupins On Rights Commission

Moorhead State's Sylvia Maupins has been named to a seven-member human rights compliance commission for the Minnesota State College System, established to develop guidelines and procedures providing for greater representation of women and minorities in the work of the State Colleges. She is director of MSC's Educational Opportunities for Minority Students Program.

Bea Lewis

Bea Lewis Ends Long MSC Career

Miss Bea Lewis, account technician in the Moorhead State College Business Office, ended a 38½ year career at the college July 31 when she retired and was honored by faculty, staff and students as a "Bea Lewis Day", designated by President Roland Dille.

A native of Hawley, MN, Miss Lewis joined the college staff in 1934 during the administration of Dr. R. B. MacLean, the first of five presidents she subsequently served under. Holding various assignments in the business office and registrar's office, Miss Lewis over the years saw the college grow from an enrollment of 451 in 1934 to about 5,000 today.

Three Named As Vice Presidents

Three top administrators at Moorhead State Collete last spring were named vice presidents. They are:

DR. ROBERT HANSON, vice president of academic affairs, who came to MSC as registrar and director of admissions in 1959 and served as dean of graduate studies and associate academic dean before becoming dean of academic affairs in 1968.

EARL HERRING, vice president of administrative affairs, who came to MSC in 1959 as assistant to the president and became dean of administrative affairs in 1963.

DR. ROBERT MACLEOD, vice president of student personnel services, who was registrar and director of admissions from 1966 to 1968 when he became dean of student personnel services.

Social Service Program Gets Accreditation

Moorhead State's Department of Social Services, established last year as the first such department in the Minnesota State College System, has been granted full accreditation for the second year.

Dr. Margaret Reed, department chairman, said accreditation approval was given by the Council on Social Work Education in New York.

The new department currently has about 350 majors and offers two academic options, one for students who intend to pursue graduate work, and another for those who will seek positions in the field after obtaining their bachelor's degrees.

NT ADVISERS

Started in January, 1971, the student adviser program at Moorhead State College will expand its services this year, particularly in providing more individualized assistance to freshmen in making the best use of the academic opportunities and various services offered by the college.

Originally proposed at a meeting of the Student Senate about two years ago, the student adviser program was developed by a joint student, faculty and administration committee and operates as a service of the Office of Academic Affairs. The program supplements, but does not replace, the faculty advising and counseling services.

Student advisers, who must be juniors or seniors of above average achievement, are chosen from applicants recommended by their major departments. Colleen Hegrenes, a recent MSC graduate, supervises details of the program, working with Lois Selberg, coordinator of special projects in the Academic Affairs office. Twenty five of the 30 selected student advisers work primarily in their major departments and five serve as general advisers.

A major project during the past two summers has been to assist with registration of new freshmen in July. In addition to providing registration assistance, student advisers arrange special activities and entertainment for freshmen who are housed overnight in the residence halls, and conduct campus tours and group sessions on special topics.

Having close contact with students at all levels, student advisers have also been effective in communicating special needs, concerns and complaints to faculty members and administrators. Some have assisted with departmental self studies, and others participate in department meetings and decision-making.

Now recognized as an essential college service, the student adviser program in 1972-73 plans to add new services, including a central information center and other projects designed to acquaint students with new developments in the college.

British Educator Discovers "Caring Atmosphere" At Moorhead State

An English educator, Dr. Richard C. Whitfield, says he discovered "a caring atmosphere" at Moorhead State College this summer and has returned to Cambridge University where he teaches education courses with many favorable impressions.

He served as a visiting professor for the MSC Education Department during the second summer session.

While he found students here have a broader range of ability and motivation, he told college officials that "the best students at MSC are every bit as good as the best students I have seen at Cambridge."

Dr. Whitfield said the American system, which is less selective than the English system in determining which students may pursue higher education, seems to bear out the theory that if students are given a chance to work up to their capacities and to excel "enough of them rise to the challenge to make it all more than worthwhile."

He believes many Moorhead State students could do much better in their studies if they were not handicapped by having to work part-time to help finance their education. "To study well is a fulltime job."

Dr. Whitfield was particularly impressed with the flexibility which MSC permits students in arranging individualized major programs to fit particular needs, in adjusting programs so as not to handicap students who have to drop out of school for a period, and to shift the course structure of a given major to take advantage of special interests and talents a student may have.

The English educator was also impressed by the college architecture and general appearance of the campus, together with a "vast range of facilities that provide splendid opportunities both for studying hard and playing hard."

Six Buildings Dedicated At June Ceremony

Six Moorhead State College buildings, named for former faculty and staff members, were formally dedicated June 24 at a public ceremony held at Murray Commons. The buildings, all officially named earlier by action of the Minnesota State College Board, are:

Bridges Hall, a three-story addition to the west side of MacLean Hall on 11th Street, named in honor of the late Samuel G. Bridges, a North Carolina native who first joined the MSC faculty in 1921 and served most of his 30 years on the campus as chairman of the Division of Social Studies.

Holmquist Hall, a three-story residence hall located near the corner of 16th street and 6th avenue south, named in honor of Miss Delsie Holmquist of Fargo, who served at MSC 37 years and filled the dual roles of dean of General Studies and chairman of humanities much of that time, before she retired and moved on to teach English at North Dakota State University.

Lommen Hall, the 40-year-old Campus School building on 6th avenue south that had not been named before, and is now officially named for Miss Georgina Lommen of Caledonia, Minn., who served for 20 years, 1923-43, as director of the Campus School.

Murray Commons, located about a block north of 9th avenue between 14th and 16th street that will serve this fall as the first home for MSC's innovative New Center for Multidisciplinary Studies. It is named for Dr. Byron Murray of Moorhead, who served the college for 41 years before retiring in 1956 with the longest tenure of any previous faculty member in the college's history.

Neumaier Hall, the newest residence hall and the tallest building in Moorhead, the 16-story high-rise is named in honor of Dr. John J. Neumaier, a native of Germany who served as president of Moorhead State for ten years, 1958-68, during a period of unparalleled growth in enrollment, faculty and facilities.

Owens Hall, the administration building near the corner of 11th street and 9th avenue south, named in honor of the late Miss Jane (Jennie) Owens, who was hired as college registrar in 1923 and served in that position for 28 years.

Five Faculty Members Retire

Five members of the Moorhead State College faculty retired at the end of the spring quarter or in the summer, and were honored at the annual spring faculty banquet. They are:

Dr. Nels N. Johnson, professor of art, who has been at MSC for 33 years and served under five of the college's eight presidents.

Miss Laura Scherfenberg, associate professor of education and first grade supervising teacher in the Campus School for 20 years.

Roy Domek, assistant professor of health, physical education and recreation and a former athletic director at the college he served for over 30 years.

Miss Ruth A. Hanson, assistant professor of education, who attended MSC in the late 1920's as a student and then returned in 1953 to serve for 19 years as a faculty member.

Dr. Herbert Abraham, professor of education, who came to MSC in 1964 after service with UNESCO and who was helpful in his international contacts in the establishment of the Student Teaching Abroad Program.

$3,700 Awarded For Physics Sound Units

A $3,700 grant from the National Science Foundation has been awarded to the MSC Physics and Astronomy Department to help buy needed equipment for a recently-established course, "Physics of Music."

The equipment will also be used in sound units of the department's standard undergraduate and graduate courses.

MSC Soprano Gets Pittsburgh Award

Elizabeth E. Smith of Moline, Ill., a soprano who received her B.S. degree in education from Moorhead State in May, is one of four recent graduates in the nation who has been awarded a valued graduate internship offered jointly by a Carnegie-Mellon University Music Department, the Pittsburgh Opera Company and the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The internship, covering all tuition payments and including a stipend of $1,000 for the 10-month school year, leads to the Master of Fine Arts in opera or voice.

Dr. Glasrud Named To Editorial Board

Dr. Clarence Glasrud of Moorhead State College has been appointed to the seven-man editorial board of the Norwegian-American Historical Association. The Board's publications since 1925 of histories, biographies, diaries, letters and collections of essays make up one of the most complete and scholarly records of any ethnic group in the U.S. today.

Dr. Glasrud served 23 years as chairman of the MSC English department until he resigned last spring to accept an assignment this fall with the Tri-College University Humanities Forum.

Consultant Named For Campus Paper

Cal Olson, managing editor of The Forum, Fargo-Moorhead, will serve as a special consultant this year to THE ADVOCATE, campus newspaper serving Moorhead State College. Olson will team with Tom Lundquist, ADVOCATE publisher, in providing criticism and suggestions to the student staff.

Six mass communications majors are serving this year in management positions for THE ADVOCATE. They are:

Steve Bond of Moorhead, editor; Steve Webber of Burnsville, Minn., associate editor; Julie Henderson of Halstad, Minn., entertainment and arts editor; Ryan Bakken of Crookston, sports editor; and Don Haagenon of McIntosh, Minn., chief photographer. Continuing into his second year as business and advertising manager is Webb White of Fargo.

THE ADVOCATE is supported and administered jointly by the Student Senate, the College Administration and the Mass Communications Department under an arrangement believed to be unique in the region.

No. 1 In Football, Track, Golf, All-Sports

IT WAS, INDEED, A VERY GOOD YEAR

Moorhead State College enjoyed a banner athletic campaign in 1971-72, winning four Northern Intercollegiate Conference championships and capturing the NIC all-sports title for the first time.

Dennis Anderson Named Cage Coach

Dennis (Denny) Anderson

Dennis Anderson, who has served for the past six years as head basketball coach at Fergus Falls, Minn. High School, joined the Moorhead State College faculty in September as head basketball coach.

He succeeds Marv Skaar, who resigned in March to accept the head basketball coaching assignment at North Dakota State University in Fargo.

Anderson was graduated in 1960 from Moorhead State where he served three years as a regular on the basketball team and was the Dragon's co-captain and most valuable player as a senior.

After graduation, he spent three years as basketball coach at Hendrum, then moved to Ada where he led the Ada Vikings to the Minnesota State High School basketball tournament in 1966, placing sixth. His 1971-72 Fergus Falls squad finished 20-3, and Anderson's 12-year high school coaching record is 183-87.

The Dragons roared to the 1971 NIC football championship with a spotless 6-0 league mark. It was the Dragons' first NIC football title since 1966. The Dragons finished 7-1-1 overall and carry a seven-game winning streak into the 1972 campaign.

The Dragon track squad repeated as NIC indoor champions and later added the conference outdoor championship to their trophy harvest last spring. The Dragons have now won three straight NIC indoor titles.

Moorhead State's surprising golf squad completed the conference crusade with a surprising triumph at the annual gathering at St. Paul in late May. It stretched the Dragon's conference win string to three straight golfing championships.

The Dragons placed third in the NIC in basketball and baseball, fifth in wrestling and sixth in tennis and cross-country.

Moorhead State's NIC all-sports championship broke a seven-year reign by St. Cloud State College.

It was, indeed, a very good year.

External Degree Programs Proposed

A special committee to study proposals for the establishment of external degree programs at Moorhead State College has been appointed by Dr. Roland Dille, president. The committee is headed by Dr. Charles E. P. Simmons, dean of the faculties of the social and behavioral sciences.

The proposal, requested by the Minnesota State College Board and its Chancellor, Dr. G. Theodore Mitau, seeks to find ways, largely through off-campus study, to serve educational needs of people in the region of Moorhead State who find traditional patterns of college classes inconvenient.

Chancellor Mitau said the proposed program will be particularly useful for working adults, and "will be highly individualized to meet specific educational objectives of people who cannot move to a campus and enroll as fulltime resident students."

Some of the factors expected to be considered in the external degree program study include the following:

+Student - college "contracts" setting forth the goals a student must meet to receive a degree.

+Competency-based evaluation of education and work experience to count toward earning a degree.

+Diversified instructional methods, such as workshops, independent study, field work, internships, etc.

+New approaches to grading and assessment.

+Establishment of off-campus learning centers staffed by college faculty in communities near the college.

MSC Senior On HPER Planning Committee

A Moorhead State College senior, Julie Nelson, was one of five college and university women in the nation chosen to participate in July at a Washington D.C., conference to plan future annual meetings for student members of the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

New trends in teaching were discussed at the Washington conference, including a prediction that high schools may soon eliminate required physical education classes and more motor skills training will be advocated for children from two years through junior high.

Next spring's student conferences are expected to concentrate on the new elementary grade emphasis on physical education, and a growing emphasis on more leisure time recreational pursuits.

Assistant Athletic Director Appointed

Loel Frederickson, a member of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation department since 1956, has been appointed assistant athletic director at Moorhead State College. He will assist Dr. T. Edison Smith, who was appointed athletic director in the summer of 1971.

During his years at MSC, Frederickson has coached wrestling, football and served as head baseball coach from 1960-'68.

Eileen Hume Heads MSC Program In Human Relations

Eileen Hume

Eileen Hume, associate dean of students at Moorhead State College, has been given an additional assignment as director of the Human Relations Program for the Education Department. She will continue to serve on the student personnel staff.

Students seeking accreditation as teachers in Minnesota after July 1, 1973 are required by a recent Minnesota Department of Education regulation to have acquired certain competencies in human relations.

The new program Dean Hume heads was established at the college this fall.

$400,000 GRANT APPROVED FOR HUMANITIES FORUM

A $400,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities has made possible the establishment this fall of a Tri-College University Humanities Forum and the development of a humanities major at Moorhead State College, Concordia College and North Dakota State University.

Local facilities, faculty members from the three Moorhead-Fargo institutions, administrative services and some local funds are expected to push the total value of the three-year project to more than $850,000, according to Dr. Albert Anderson, Provost of the Tri-College University.

"This Humanities Forum grant represents an outside judgment about the ability of the Tri-College University schools to work together successfully, and about this I'm most happy," said Dr. Roland Dille, president of Moorhead State College and chairman of the Tri-College University board of directors. "It allows us to provide something for our students that none of us can do alone, and that's what the Tri-College University is all about."

Starting this month, the Humanities Forum will offer two semesters for the 1972-73 year, with headquarters in Moorhead's old post office, where it shares quarters with the Red River Art Center.

The Humanities Forum approach is tied to the need for each institution to develop its own full-fledged major and minor programs in humanities, through use of a core curriculum and through common market exchange of students.

An integrated approach to the humanities through the intense, fulltime study of one special theme is planned for this year when the theme will be "Authority and Individual Liberty in Western Society." The theme will be studied through art, literature, music, history, philosophy and sociology.
